BT has conducted Customer Satisfaction Surveys since 2014 in an effort to better understand consumer sentiment, service usage, and potential service improvements.

AMERICAN CUSTOMER SATISFACTION INDEX

Subscription TV Service falls 3% to an 11-year low. The industry faces a seismic shift of subscribers defecting to lower-cost online video streaming services.

Internet service providers are down 3%, an all time low. Customers are unhappy with the high price of poor service, but small ISPs are among the few to keep customer satisfaction stable.

Comcast’s subscriber losses from cord cutting are expected to double this year.

VIDEO STREAMING AND VIDEO-ON-DEMAND CUSTOMER SATISFACTION INDEX

Video on-Demand service debuts with a score of 68, which is much lower than video streaming services.

Video streaming services debut as the highest performing telecom category with a score of 75.

Video streaming services are doing well by avoiding some of the most hated aspects of telecom experiences. No hidden fees and canceling is easy and painless.

Overall, billing is much more straightforward than cable and customers find it very easy to understand. Customer service is good.

Streaming Services have fundamentally changed buyer expectations.
